House might kill sales tax

HELENA (AP)—Speaker James Lucas, R-Miles City, acknowledging there is a distinct possibility the sales tax bill may not pass the House, said yesterday Montanans may have to live with a "bare-bones governmental budget."

"This is not necessarily bad in a period of economic downturn such as we have now," Lucas said.

An Associated Press report about possible failure of the sales tax said the GOP-backed bill, HB586, could go down on a 52-52 tie, while its best hope for passage would be by a 53-51 vote. Not inconceivable would be a 53-51 House vote against the plan to raise from $60 to $65 million from a broad-based sales tax in the 1971-73 biennium.

Lucas noted the Democratic administration's major revenue proposal — to boost income taxes by prohibiting federal taxes as a deduction — has been rejected by the Republican-controlled House.

"We're cutting the governor's budget now," Lucas said. "This is being done regardless of what revenue measures pass or fail. It means that if we do get the sales tax, the extra revenue would be used principally for property tax relief."

Asked how extensive the cut will be, Lucas said, "About 10 to 15 per cent is being taken off the proposed increase of some $34 million in new money."

In explaining why the sales tax bill's future is so shaky, he said, "When you broaden a new revenue source to include all retail sales and such items as fees for engineers, accountants, lawyers and other business services, you also broaden the opposition.

"Also," he said, "some people have genuine reservations about the bill's present form."

"The vote unquestionably will be close, either way. If it should be advanced to the Senate, we are certainly open to proposed amendments to bring out the most acceptable type of program," Lucas said.

In reply to a question about what money would make up a bare-bones budget, Lucas said, "present taxes plus the natural growth in the state's tax system."

He said growth should produce about $17 million in new money for the general fund. This could rise to $20 million with such changes as bringing banks under the corporation license tax and taxing table wines.

Food for Peace funds diverted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department told Congress yesterday that $693.1 million in Food for Peace funds have been converted into military assistance for Korea, South Vietnam and other countries since 1965.

Undersecretary of State John Irwin, testifying before the Senate-House Economic Committee, said the conversions were made with U.S. permission over the past six years from the sale of American foodstuffs for local currencies.

Irwin released statistics showing that in the period from 1965 to 1970, South Vietnam converted $446 million in Food For Peace funds for military purposes and Korea got $21.3 million.

Irwin said the money can be used for any purpose the receiving country sees fit, consistent with its well-being and security.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the committee chairman, noting that such funds are not subject to the usual congressional authorization and appropriation, told Irwin, "If a country needs these funds for security reasons, it should make the case on that basis, rather than to pervert Food For Peace to food for war."

The Food For Peace Act does provide that funds realized through sales of food be deposited to the credit of the United States and used for such specified purposes as financing of U.S. activities in the receiving country, development of new markets for U.S. farm commodities, promotion of economic development and for educational exchange programs and to assist in the "common defense."

Galusha rites at capital city

Funeral services for Hugh D. Galusha Jr., 51, who died on a snowmobile trip high in the southern Montana Rockies Sunday, will be held in Helena today.

Galusha, who was an active member of the UM Foundation Board of Trustees, died in a self-made snow cave after he and the snowmobile party he was with had been trapped in the Beartooth Mountains by a blizzard.

Galusha attended classes at UM in 1940 and received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at UM in June, 1969. He was president of the Ninth Federal Reserve District in Minneapolis, Minn., at the time of his death.

A Montana native, Galusha headed an accounting firm in Helena before becoming president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. He had served on the bank's board of directors since 1963.

Galusha also was a former director of the Yellowstone Park Co. and had held a seat on the board of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Summer work study may be discontinued

The UM summer work study program may be discontinued this year, according to Donald Mullen, director of the financial aids department.

"It is highly unlikely that we will have a summer work study program of any significance," Mullen said.

He estimated the work study allocation reduction for the next academic year will be between $200,000 and $400,000.

Based on a report from the U.S. Office of Education, Mullen estimated that UM would receive an allocation for next year of $550,000.

He said the funding of the work study programs during the academic year would take precedence over the summer work program.

The current financial balance for the work study program in Montana for the period from July 1 to Dec. 1 is $3,000. Mullen said the additional federal allotment to UM of $550,000 is more from a pool of unused funds from other colleges in the United States.

Based on national fund estimates of $20 million, the University will receive $550,000 for next year, Mullen said.

"This is the situation if the unrealistically high estimates of the federal funds are met," he said.

Mullen estimated the reduction in next year's work study funds would be $1 million for the state.

He explained that UM would not be given funds next year for graduate students or undergraduate students from families with a gross income of more than $6,000. Mullen said he did not know if he would be prohibited from assisting these students if funds were available.

sity Center director, resident halls office, married student housing director and Physical Plant director.

According to the proposed by-laws, each candidate for an official ASUM position must submit a campaign expense statement, including all personal, organizational and other expenditures. No candidate for CB delegate would be allowed to spend more than $25 on his campaign, while candidates for ASUM officer positions would not be allowed to spend more than $75 for their campaign.

The board will recommend Judy McVay, junior in English, to fill the CB position vacated by Connie Enzweiler, sophomore in secondary education. Enzweiler resigned last Wednesday after Central Board allotted $173,000 to the athletic budget.

ASUM election rules up for CB approval

Planning Board adopted the revised ASUM Election Committee by-laws last night and will present them to Central Board tonight.

The revised by-laws, if approved by CB, would make the Elections Committee hold a primary election for each ASUM office with more than three candidates running for it. The revised by-laws would make the committee establish procedures for absentee voting in both the primary and general UM elections.

The proposed by-laws would give the committee power to disqualify candidates running for ASUM offices or as CB delegates, if campaign signs were not taken down the midnight of election eve.

The revised by-laws would allow campaign signs to be posted only in "authorized spaces," defined by the food service director, Univer-

Dust control bill revived; Senate will debate issue

HELENA (AP) — Saying that Anaconda has a lung-cancer death rate double the national average, Sen. John McKeon, D-Anaconda, yesterday led a successful floor fight to keep alive a bill designed to bring dust control to Montana.

Senate Bill 149, introduced by McKeon and Sen. Elmer Flynn, D-Missoula, apparently was headed for defeat because of an adverse report by the Senate Public Health, Welfare and Safety Committee.

But McKeon rose after the Senate first voted to accept the committee report.

McKeon's bill would have re-

Monitored discussion?

Under the watchful eye of a departed warrior, Kyi-Yo Indian Club members discuss SB311, a measure designed to grant fee-waivers to Montana Indian students attending state universities.

Campus briefs

Kyi-Yo Club backs fee waiver

The Kyi-Yo Indian Club voted last night to send a letter to the state legislature in support of SB-311, which would provide fee waivers for all Montana resident Indians attending state universities.

The bill, introduced by William Bertsche, D-Cascade, allows fee waivers for all Indian students if they have been a Montana resident for one year, if they are one quarter Indian and if they have completed four years of high school or federal Indian School. It also states the waivers will be handled through each separate university. This fee waiver covers $75 of UM's quarterly $138 fee.

The present policy allows fee waivers for only 96 Indian students per year in the entire state, according to Harold Gray, UM Indian Studies counselor.

Free U to discuss health care

"Human Needs and the Health Care System" will be the topic of discussion at the Free University meeting tonight.

The emphasis of the meeting will be centered on a proposed prepaid health care package for the Missoula area with a general discussion of the problems facing both doctors and recipients of medical services.

Dr. James Law, a pediatrician active in health planning, Mrs. Donna Hatton of the Low Income Group For Human Treatment, Dr. Richard Peterson, president of the Montana Medical Association, and other doctors will take part in the conversation.

The discussion will be held at the UCCF House, 430 University Ave. The Free University sessions are sponsored by the campus pastors.

CB to vote on fund requests

CB will vote on a motion to allocate $678 to the Draft Counseling Center tonight, said Jack Green, ASUM president yesterday.

The allocation would pay for the cost of operating the center during the Summer Quarter. It would also cover the center's budget deficit caused by the center's remaining open last summer, Green said.

Phi Alpha Theta, history honor society, will request $264 for expenses for its trip to the society's regional conference in Seattle in March. Five students and an adviser will attend the conference.

A request for $68 to help reimburse Environmental Studies for expenses incurred at a recent conference at Whitefish will be voted on, Green said.

Clayton Schenck, Publication Commission chairman will ask CB to allocate the commission $2,500.

Angela Davis defense fund garners $70

A committee supporting the Angela Davis defense fund collected about $70 at a table in the UC last week, according to Diane Sands, an organizer of the committee.

Sands said the committee includes members of Missoula Women's Liberation and the Black students.

The committee handed out a reprint from the National Defense Fund for Angela Davis in San Francisco, Calif., and a statement of the committee's beliefs.

The scenario: a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, March, 1971.

Sen. J. W. Halfbright: We are here, as you fellows know, to query Secretary of Defense Helbert Scared about our "protective reaction" strike into Laos. Let's not delay him too long, for even as I speak our forces are engaged in battle here and overseas, and Mr. Vixon needs the Secretary as his right arm, so to speak, of course.

Scared: Well, that's very nice of you Senator, but, I wouldn't go so far as to say that. However, as Secretary of Defense, I am, one could say, needed. What I actually wish to point out, nonetheless, is Mr. Vixon's stated position about that and also. . . .

Halfbright: You don't have to equivocate until we ask you a question, Helbert. I believe Sen. MisGovern has the first one.

MisGovern: Yes, I sure do. Is it true that on Feb. 12, 1971 you authorized a strike into Laos to be carried out by American troops to destroy the alleged headquarters of the alleged enemy sanctuaries?

Scared: Well let me make this clear, gentlemen. My department, that is to say, the Defense Department, has publicly made known on numerous occasions that we would take any actions necessary to protect the men fighting in the jungles for this great country of ours.

Halfbright: Answer the question.

Scared: Certainly! but what exactly does the Sen-

Jarussi encourages support for Norman

To the students:

It seems that John Murphy and possibly a few others are in doubt as to whether or not Dan Norman is performing his duties as a member of Central Board.

I know Dan Norman's qualities as well as anybody on this campus possibly could. I know him to be a hard-working ambitious politician who is very involved with CB and how it functions on this campus. Believe me, he is one of the few on this campus who sincerely gives a damn about any issue affecting us or this university.

You're wondering why he is in Helena every day this quarter except Wednesdays? Most important, he is there as a student representing UM. He's observing the legislative processes and keeping a legislative journal for a few credits. Would any other political science majors be ambitious enough to observe four hours a day, six days a week, for a whole quarter, just to earn twelve college credits, when they could easily pick them up right here?

He receives our informative Kaimin over there; he calls several reputable Missoula sources every night to keep informed on campus issues; plus he travels 240 miles every Wednesday in order to attend Central Board meetings.

Just last Wednesday he supported a cut in the athletic budget. He also offered a compromise if a cut wasn't passed, in consideration of the students' overwhelming demand that some action be taken toward the athletic budget. The majority of Central Board didn't seem to think anybody wanted this cut, so they gave Jack Swarthout his raise minus a measly thousand. Where's the recognition?

I heard applause at the meeting when the motion was made to cut the money, but when Dan loyally supported the cut, CB decided to have a little circus instead, resulting in an athletic raise instead of a cut or even a compromise.

In reply to John Murphy's comment, "I didn't think Dan Norman had enough time to be on Central Board," when a person feels as strongly about his college as Dan Norman, he finds the time to be involved!

When Dan Norman appears to be standing alone, it is because he is standing for us. Support him!

MisGovern: Oh my god.

Sen. Birch Bare: Did you or did you not authorize the incursion?

Scared: Well, it was strictly surgical of course, and. . .

Bare: Did you authorize it. . . did you hear the question?

Scared: Just leaving through my notes on that one. Well, the Joint Chiefs thought it would be quick and neat so. . .

Bare: So you authorized it?

Scared: Yes, if you must put it that way.

Sen. Halfbright: You realize, of course, you took this action without the consultation of Congress and without the knowledge of the American public. Now the country is wracked with uncontrollable rioting coast to coast, volunteer pilots from the Soviet Union are in the air against us all over Indochina and the Egyptians are attacking Israel?

Scared: Now as for those demonstrator bums, a few nattering nabobs. . .

Bare: The National Guard is rioting too.

MisGovern: Oh my god.

Halfbright: Why this incursion?

Scared: You realize, of course, besides the sanctuaries we had to consider the American prisoners living in ghetto-like conditions. . .

Bare: Prisoners, what prisoners?

Scared: Well the protective reaction bombing of January, you knew of course, would result in an acceptable level casualties and losses. . .

MisGovern: Oh my God.

Halfbright: What bombing? Why did it all start in the first place?

Scared: Well we received extremely reliable information on the sanctuary buildup and prisoner accommodations. . .

Bare: Why wasn't this made public?

Scared: Well actually, Senator, our source was flagrantly public, that is why we felt immediate action was necessary.

Bare: What was this source.

Scared: The Reader's Digest.

Tough route

Cubs split road tilts

The Montana Cubs lifted their season record to 6-7 with two basketball victories last weekend, dropping Whitworth College junior varsity, 88-78, Friday, and Eastern Washington junior varsity, 89-87, Saturday.

Coach Jack McWhorter said both teams were considerably better than he had expected and said both games were "too close for comfort."

McWhorter said Robin Selvig, former Outlook standout, had his best weekend of the season, hitting on 10 of 12 field goal shots Friday and 6 out of 13 Saturday. Selvig scored 23 points Friday night and 16 Saturday.

The Cubs have won six of their last nine games which McWhorter attributes to a better over-all team effort. All five remaining Cub games are at home, giving them an edge, according to McWhorter.

Following Selvig in the scoring column Friday was Kevin Rocheleau and Scott Hollenbeck with 18 points each and Blake Lyman and Cris Anderson with 12.

Saturday night against Eastern Washington, Anderson paced the Cub scoring with 24 points, Hollenbeck scored 19, Selvig got 16 with Rocheleau and Hubbard hitting 10 apiece.

Saturday night, the Cubs play the Gonzaga Bullpups in the preliminary contest of the Montana-Gonzaga game. The Cubs downed the Bullpups by 10, 84-74, in the last meeting of the two clubs.

Monday night, the Cubs give the Eastern Washington JV's a return match before the Montana-Idaho game. Both games are scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

Skiers second at Banff meet

The University of Montana ski team took second place in the team standings last weekend at the 25th Annual Banff Intercollegiate Ski Meet held in Banff, Alberta.

The University of Wyoming finished first with 348.1 points, Montana had 342.9 for second, the University of British Columbia was third with 324.2 and Montana State University was fourth with 312.4. Denver University, the 1970 NCAA skiing champion, did not show up for the meet. Denver was scheduled to compete, but withdrew just before the meet.

UM Coach Rusty Lyons was happy with Montana's showing in the meet but said his alpine skiers were not skiing "up to par."

Lyons said one of the reasons the skiers didn't turn in faster times was because of a wax problem. "The races were started later than scheduled and we didn't have enough wax on the skis for the conditions of the mountain," he said.

"Perhaps the most outstanding thing we did at Banff was winning the jumping title," he said.

UM's two entries in the jumping event, Allan Anderson and Gary Keltz, placed second and tenth as Montana captured the first jumping title ever won by a UM nordic team.

Montana's Tom Zachary was second in the combined alpine events, skiing to a fifth place finish in the slalom and seventh in the giant slalom.

Lyons said there was fine competition at the meet, with 85 racers entered in the alpine events and 57 competitors in the nordic division.

Other Grizzly skiers placing in the competition for Montana were Bob Gordon, sixth in slalom; Kenn Hugos, sixteenth in slalom and twenty-seventh in giant slalom; Craig Menteer, eighteenth in slalom and thirty-fourth in giant slalom and Gary Keltz placed twelfth and thirteenth in the cross country with Jon Williamson and Anderson taking twentieth and twenty-first, respectively.

The next competition for the Grizzlies will be Feb. 6 and 7 in the Missoula Invitational Meet at the Snow Bowl.

Interest down in jumping

Interest in the skydiving club has decreased since the mid-air collision over Missoula of a skydiving plane and another light plane last November, according to Larry Mason, club treasurer and sophomore in wildlife biology.

Mason said fewer students than he expected came to the introductory meeting last week.

Some students, who wanted to jump Fall Quarter and could not because club membership was filled, failed to show up this quarter, he said. Mason attributed this loss of interest to the crash.

The Silverstar Skydivers Club has a regular membership of about 70 persons, including about 25 regular jumpers, according to Mason.
